

MORE VAMPIRE FACIALS, KIM?

Trying to hide from snappers as she left a clinic in LA last week, Kim was spotted with thick cream on her face - sparking talk of another cosmetic procedure.

Skincare expert Sonya Cross, from The You Clinic in London, tells Star: "It looks like Kim is wearing post-procedure camouflage make-up, used to disguise redness after invasive facial treatments.

"It's likely she's had another 'Vampire Facial' or a more intensive Dermarolling procedure. Both refresh tired skin and improve fine lines and wrinkles."

After sleepless nights with four-month-old Nori, we can't blame you, Kim! ■